

This file is distributed under a Creative Commons \(CC\) license. This doesn't replace copyright -- which remains undivided with Mark Reich -- but it makes the terms more flexible. The IGLC community may use this file for their personal use. However, this use must be made within the terms of the CC license "Attribution -- NonCommercial -- NoDerivative."

This Creative Commons license allows you to reproduce, distribute, display, or perform publicly this file as long as you follow these guidelines:

- Attribution: You explicitly reference Mark Reich as the original source of the materials. Please follow the Attribution Guidelines below when referencing this file.
- NonCommercial: You cannot use this file (or any parts of it) for commercial purposes.
- NoDerivative Works: You cannot alter this file in any way (edit, remix, cut, etc). These conditions can be modified only by explicit permission of the copyright holder (i.e., Mark Reich). The complete text of the license can be seen on the Creative Commons (CC) website.

ATTRIBUTION GUIDELINES

Reich, M. (2016). "An Overview of the Lean Enterprise Institute" Advances in Lean Design & Construction Practice from New England, across the US, and Abroad full-day event, IGLC-24, July 19, Boston, USA.

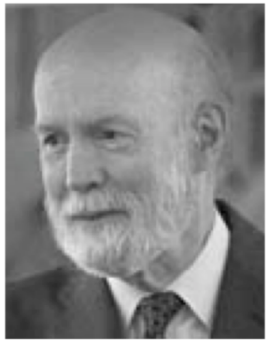

The Lean Enterprise Institute

© Copyright 2015 Lean Enterprise Institute. All rights reserved.
Lean Enterprise Institute and the leaper image are registered trademarks of Lean Enterprise Institute, Inc.

What is the Lean Enterprise Institute?

Our Mission: Make Things Better Through Lean Thinking and Practice

Founded in 1997 by Dr. James Womack, principal scientist of the MIT IMVP study that resulted in The Machine That Changed the World.

CEO John Shook, 20 full time employees, extensive list of faculty and associates.

- Non-profit education and research institute, based in Cambridge, MA, with 20 global affiliates
- Over 300,000 members from all industries

How We Learn, Share and Collaborate

LEI as a Collaborative Process

Lean Transformation Framework

